

July 26, 2018

Intellicasting partnered with OmniSpear in 2015 to develop a cloud-based application for the quick-service restaurant industry. Intellicasting customers pay a monthly subscription fee for access to financial reporting and forecasting, scheduling and team communication. I can strongly recommend OmniSpear as a partner to both develop customer web applications as well as provide ongoing maintenance for business systems.

Our business is centered around the application that OmniSpear built and on their ability to quickly respond when issues arise. OmniSpear has listened to the needs of our customer base and developed a user-friendly and reliable service that our customers use every single day, multiple times a day. When issues do arise, OmniSpear's maintenance team is quick to respond and resolves the issue within hours.

We continue to work with OmniSpear to develop new features and are impressed by the continuity of support. They are as attentive to our business as the first day we began working with them. While our projects are smaller now, the OmniSpear team provides the same attention to detail as they always have ensuring new features get integrated smoothly.

As a business owner, it's important to have partners you can count on. In application development, that means finding a provider who is honest and efficient. I can recommend OmniSpear without hesitation for simple to complex application development projects.

Brian Schaaf
Founder Intellicasting, Inc.

intellicasting

Intelligent forecasting suite for optimized restaurant performance
www.intellicasting.com